CRO Audit

Where Coaching Helps Most

Each session is shaped around the aspects of speaking that have the greatest impact on your message.

Executive Summary

Sonny's Speech Studio offers a strong, well-defined service with clear value for its target audience. The core challenge is not the quality of the coaching itself, but how that value is currently communicated and structured across the website.

At present, the site contains many of the right elements — including clear service descriptions, testimonials, and pricing transparency — but they are not organized in a way that effectively guides users through a decision-making process. As a result, visitors are required to interpret and connect information on their own, which increases friction and reduces conversion.

This is particularly important given the context of paid traffic. With users arriving from high-intent search queries, the website must quickly establish relevance, build trust, and create a clear path to action. When this does not happen within the first few seconds, users are more likely to leave, regardless of the quality of the underlying offer.

The primary opportunity is to restructure the homepage into a focused, conversion-driven landing experience supported by clearer messaging, stronger trust signals, and a more intentional flow of information. This includes:

- Clarifying positioning and audience relevance immediately
- Introducing stronger problem recognition to create connection
- Sequencing content to move users from interest to confidence
- Reducing hesitation through trust, reassurance, and process clarity
- Strengthening calls-to-action throughout the page

Additionally, because this is a highly personal service, there is a significant opportunity to increase trust and conversion by incorporating visual elements such as video. Allowing users to see and hear Sonny — both as a speaker and as a coach — can materially improve comfort level and perceived credibility.

This audit focuses on identifying the highest-impact opportunities across structure, messaging, trust, and user flow, with clear, implementation-ready direction. While the site does not require a complete reinvention, it does require a more strategic approach to how information is presented and how users are guided toward taking action.

With these improvements, the existing traffic has a significantly stronger chance of converting into qualified inquiries and ultimately into paying clients.

How to Use This Report

This report is designed to provide clear, implementation-ready direction for improving conversion performance across your website. The recommendations focus on structure, messaging, trust, and user flow — the core elements that influence whether visitors take action.

To get the most value from this report, it is important to approach it as a prioritized roadmap rather than a checklist to execute all at once.

1. Start with High-Impact Changes

Begin with the items identified as highest priority in the roadmap. These are foundational improvements that will have the greatest influence on conversion performance, including:

- Homepage structure and flow
- Hero messaging and positioning
- Trust and credibility elements
- Call-to-action strategy

These changes should be implemented first, as they directly affect how users understand and engage with the site.

2. Focus on Structure Before Refinement

Many of the recommendations involve restructuring how information is presented rather than simply editing existing content. It is important to:

- Establish the correct page flow and hierarchy first
- Then refine messaging and content within that structure

Making surface-level changes without addressing structure will limit overall impact.

3. Use This as a Blueprint for Implementation

This report is intended to guide a developer and/or designer through implementation. It provides:

- Section-by-section direction

- Messaging guidance
- Placement recommendations

While it does not include full copywriting or design files, it is structured to reduce ambiguity and support execution with minimal guesswork.

4. Prioritize Clarity Over Perfection

The goal is not to create a “perfect” website before launching changes. Instead:

- Implement the core structure and messaging improvements
- Ensure the site is clear, trustworthy, and easy to navigate
- Avoid overcomplicating or over-designing early iterations

Clear and functional will outperform complex and incomplete.

5. Measure Impact Over Time

Conversion improvements depend on traffic volume and implementation quality. After making updates:

- Monitor inquiry rates and form submissions
- Evaluate lead quality (not just quantity)
- Allow time for patterns to emerge before making additional changes

Smaller sites with lower traffic may require more time to see clear performance trends.

6. Continue Iterating

This report focuses on the highest-impact opportunities within the current scope. As improvements are implemented:

- Additional refinements and optimizations may become more apparent
- Future phases can build on this foundation

Conversion optimization is an ongoing process, not a one-time fix.

Summary

This report provides the strategic foundation needed to improve how visitors experience your site and move toward taking action. The results you achieve will depend on both the quality of implementation and the consistency of applying these recommendations.

About Sonny's Speech Studio

Meet Your Coach

My name is Sonny Velasco, and I'm the founder of Sonny's Speech Studio. For over 12 years, public speaking has been a consistent part of my life, with regular experience delivering talks and presentations in a variety of settings and for groups of different sizes, including an audience of more than 2,000 people.

My journey did not begin with confidence. Like many, I struggled with stage fright, overthinking, and uncertainty. Through disciplined practice, repeated experience, and the guidance of strong mentors, I learned how to organize my thoughts clearly and speak with greater confidence and composure. Today, I help professionals improve their clarity, structure, and confident delivery through personalized coaching built around real-world speaking situations.

My Coaching Approach

I help professionals strengthen their speaking skills for presentations, meetings, and other important speaking situations, not through performance tricks, but through preparation, structure, and deliberate practice.

Each online session is personalized and focused on real-world application. We work directly on the situations you're preparing for, using structured exercises, practical frameworks, and targeted feedback to help you build clearer, more confident delivery.

What Clients Improve

Clients often strengthen delivery through improved vocal control, modulation, and pacing, while also building presence through better eye contact, body language, and gestures.

Coaching also strengthens preparation and structure through clearer message organization, persuasive speech building, and practical routines for composure.

Section: Performance Data Overview

Overview

The following summarizes performance across the last 30 days based on Google Analytics and Google Ads data provided.

This data highlights a key theme:

Traffic is reaching the site, but the funnel is not converting efficiently into qualified leads or paying clients.

Traffic & Engagement

- 94 total users
- 206 total sessions (~2.2 sessions per user)
- 2.35 pages per session
- 3 minutes 51 seconds average session duration

Implication:

Users are spending time on the site and engaging with multiple pages, which indicates:

- Interest is present
- The topic and offer are relevant
- Visitors are not immediately bouncing

However, engagement alone is not translating into conversion.

Acquisition (Channel Breakdown)

- 229 total sessions across channels
- Referral: 102 sessions (44.5%)
- Paid Search: 58 sessions (25.3%)
- Direct: 51 sessions (22.3%)
- Organic Search: 16 sessions (7%)

Implication:

- Paid traffic is a meaningful portion of traffic
 - Users arriving from search are likely high intent
 - The funnel must convert efficiently to justify ad spend

Paid Ads Performance

- ~1,500 impressions
 - 42 clicks
 - ~$16 CPC
 - 3 form submissions (~7–8% conversion rate)
 - 0 paying clients

Conversion Breakdown

Click → Lead

- 42 clicks → 3 form submissions
- ~7–8% conversion rate

This is not inherently poor, but...

Lead → Client

- 3 leads → 0 clients
 - 0% close rate (in this sample)

Key Insight (Critical)

The issue is not just conversion rate — it is conversion quality and trust alignment.

The funnel is currently:

- Generating some leads
 - But not generating confident, ready-to-buy prospects

Engagement Quality by Channel

- Paid Search engagement rate: 32.7%
- Avg engagement time: 17 seconds

Implication:

- Paid users are not engaging deeply
 - This suggests:
 - Misalignment between ad expectations and landing page
 - Lack of immediate clarity or trust
 - Users not finding what they expected quickly

Core Funnel Problem

Based on the data:

1. Low Traffic Volume

- ~1-2 clicks per day
- Limited ability for small improvements to compound

2. Weak First Impression

- Paid users disengage quickly

3. Trust Gap

- Leads are hesitant or unresponsive

4. Poor Lead Quality

- Even converted users are not converting into clients

Revenue Math (Very Important Section)

At current performance:

- ~$16 CPC
- ~8% conversion rate

Cost per Lead:

~ $200 per inquiry

Revenue per Session:

$60

What This Means

The current model is not sustainable without improving conversion quality.

To break even:

- Either:
 - Conversion rate must increase
 - Lead quality must increase
 - Or both

Real Opportunity

This is not a traffic scaling problem — it is a funnel efficiency problem.

The biggest opportunity is:

- Turning existing traffic into:
 - Higher-quality inquiries
 - Higher-confidence prospects
 - Paying clients

How This Connects to the Audit

The recommendations in this report are designed to:

- Improve first-impression clarity
 - Strengthen trust early in the experience
 - Align messaging with search intent
 - Guide users through a structured decision process
 - Increase both conversion rate and conversion quality

Summary

Visitors are arriving with intent and spending time on the site, but the funnel is not building enough clarity and trust to convert them into paying clients.

Even modest improvements to:

- Messaging
- Structure
- Trust signals

can significantly improve:

- Conversion rate
 - Lead quality
 - Cost per client

Conversion Flow

Overview

This section outlines how users move through the website from initial visit to inquiry. The goal is to align the page structure with how people naturally evaluate and decide to engage with a service.

Currently, the site presents information, but does not consistently guide users through a structured decision-making process. This can create friction, as users must connect the dots themselves.

Current Experience

- Users arrive with a specific goal or problem
- They are presented with general information about the service
- Trust and relevance are not immediately reinforced
- The path to taking action is not clearly guided

As a result, some users leave before fully understanding the value or feeling confident enough to reach out.

Optimized Conversion Flow

The homepage should guide users through the following stages:

1. Recognition

“This is for me”

- Clear, outcome-focused messaging
 - Problem recognition (“Is this you?”)
 - Real-world use cases (meetings, presentations, etc.)

2. Trust

“I can trust this person”

- Experience (12+ years)
 - Testimonials
 - Visual elements (video, speaking images)

3. Clarity

“I understand how this works”

- Clear explanation of coaching
 - Simple process (“How it works”)
 - Defined expectations

4. Comfort

“This feels safe and low risk”

- Reassurance (no pressure, free consultation)
- Supportive tone
- FAQ addressing concerns

5. Action

“I’m ready to reach out”

- Clear call-to-action
 - Simple contact process
 - Reinforcement of next steps

How This Applies to the Homepage

Each section of the homepage should support a specific stage in this flow:

- Hero → Recognition + Trust
 - Problem Recognition → Recognition
 - Audience Fit / Readiness → Clarity + Alignment
 - How Coaching Helps → Solution clarity
 - How It Works → Process clarity
 - Testimonials → Trust
 - FAQ → Comfort
 - Final CTA → Action

Why This Matters

Users do not convert based on a single section. They convert when they:

- Recognize their situation
- Trust the solution
- Understand the process
- Feel comfortable taking the next step

By structuring the page around this flow, the experience becomes more intuitive and significantly more effective at converting visitors into inquiries.

Summary

The goal is not to add more content, but to guide users more intentionally through a clear path from recognition to action.

Homepage Blueprint (Primary Conversion Page)

Overview

The homepage should function as the primary conversion page, guiding users through a structured decision-making process from initial interest to inquiry.

At present, the page contains strong foundational elements, but they are not organized in a way that supports how users evaluate and move toward taking action.

This blueprint restructures the page to:

- Improve clarity and immediate relevance
 - Build trust earlier and more consistently
 - Introduce problem recognition and emotional connection
 - Provide clear process and expectations
 - Reduce hesitation and increase inquiries

Section 1: Hero (Clarity + Immediate Trust)

Barrier

The current hero includes key information, but it is presented without clear hierarchy, making it harder to quickly understand the value and build confidence.

Trigger

Users need to immediately understand within just a few seconds, usually 3-8 seconds:

- What this is
- Who it's for
- Whether they can trust it
- What to do next

Fix

Present a simplified, high-impact hero with embedded trust signals.

Structure

Headline

Speak clearly and confidently in meetings and presentations

Subheadline

1-on-1 coaching for professionals who want structured, practical improvement — not generic advice

Trust Line

12+ years experience • 1-on-1 coaching • Personalized, structured sessions

Optional Micro Social Proof

"Sonny has a clear plan for each session. He guides me step-by-step." — Alejandro S.

CTA

Book a Free Consultation (links to the Contact Us Page)

Micro Reassurance

Starts at $60/session • No pressure

Section 2: Emotional Positioning + Problem Recognition

Barrier

The page explains the service but does not clearly reflect the user's specific struggles or experiences.

Trigger

Users need to feel understood and see themselves in the message.

Fix

Introduce a short, scannable problem-recognition section.

Structure

Header

Does this sound like you?

Bullets

- You feel nervous speaking in meetings or presentations
- You lose your train of thought or struggle to stay organized
- You want to sound more confident and prepared
- You know what you want to say, but it doesn't come out clearly

Transition

This is exactly what coaching is designed to help with.

Section 3: Audience Fit (“This Is For You If...”)

Barrier

It is not immediately clear who the service is best suited for.

Trigger

Users want to confirm they are the right fit.

Fix

Define the ideal audience and expectations.

Structure

Header

Coaching is for you if:

Bullets

- You want structured, practical improvement
- You are open to feedback and applying it
- You want to improve how you communicate in real work situations
- You are looking for personalized, one-on-one support

Section 4: Commitment Shift (“You’re Ready To...”)

Barrier

There is no clear transition from interest to readiness.

Trigger

Users need a forward-looking perspective that reinforces action.

Fix

Introduce a short outcome-focused section.

Structure

Header

You're ready to:

Bullets

- Speak more clearly and confidently in meetings and presentations
 - Communicate your ideas with structure and clarity
 - Feel more prepared and composed in important situations

Section 5: How Coaching Helps (Solution)

Barrier

Current content focuses on features rather than transformation.

Trigger

Users need to understand how the service improves their situation.

Fix

Reframe benefits around real-world problems and outcomes.

Structure

- Organize your thoughts and communicate clearly
- Improve delivery, presence, and confidence
- Speak with composure in high-pressure situations

Section 6: How It Works (Process Clarity)

Barrier

The process is not clearly defined, creating uncertainty.

Trigger

Users need to understand what happens next and how simple it is to get started.

Fix

Introduce a clear, simple process.

Structure

Header

How coaching works

Steps

1. Book a free consultation
 2. Discuss your goals and challenges
 3. Start personalized coaching sessions

Section 7: Social Proof (Trust Building)

Barrier

Testimonials exist but are not fully leveraged.

Trigger

Users want reassurance that the coaching works.

Fix

Highlight testimonials with emphasis on outcomes.

Structure

- 2–3 testimonials
 - Highlight transformation (confidence, clarity, structure)
 - Place earlier and/or repeat strategically

Section 8: Credibility (Condensed About)

Barrier

Credibility is present but not consistently visible.

Trigger

Users want to know who they are working with.

Fix

Include a short credibility section on the homepage.

Structure

- Brief introduction to Sonny
- 12+ years of experience
- Speaking experience (including large audiences)

- Coaching approach

Section 9: Differentiation

Barrier

The service is not clearly differentiated from alternatives.

Trigger

Users need to understand why this option is better.

Fix

Highlight unique aspects of the coaching.

Structure

Header

What makes this coaching different

Bullets

- Structured, skill-based approach
 - Focus on real-world application
 - Personalized coaching tailored to your goals
 - Practical feedback you can apply immediately

Section 10: FAQ (Friction Reduction)

Barrier

The FAQ is not optimized for scanning and objection handling.

Trigger

Users want quick answers to concerns.

Fix

Convert to a scannable, structured format.

Structure

- Accordion format
 - Reordered for priority questions
 - Include key concerns (fit, process, comfort, expectations)

Section 11: Final CTA

Barrier

The current closing section does not strongly reinforce action.

Trigger

Users need a clear, low-risk next step.

Fix

End with a strong, outcome-driven CTA.

Structure

Headline

Start improving your speaking with a free consultation

Subtext

We'll talk through your goals and see if coaching is the right fit. No pressure.

Final Summary

This structure introduces a clear, intentional flow:

- Immediate clarity and trust
- Problem recognition
- Audience fit
- Readiness
- Solution
- Process
- Trust and credibility
- Differentiation
- Action

By aligning the page with how users naturally evaluate and decide, this approach reduces friction and increases the likelihood of converting visitors into qualified inquiries.

Conversion Opportunity:

Video & Trust Signals

Barrier

The site currently relies primarily on text and static imagery to communicate value. For a highly personal, trust-based service like coaching, this creates a gap in how users evaluate both expertise and comfort level.

As a result:

- Users cannot easily assess Sonny's communication style
 - Trust takes longer to build
 - Hesitation increases before taking action

Trigger

Users need to quickly feel:

- "This person knows what they're doing"
 - "I would feel comfortable working with them"
 - "This feels real and approachable"

Fix

Introduce simple video and visual elements that allow users to quickly evaluate both expertise and personality.

Recommended Video Types

1. Intro Video (Highest Priority)

Purpose: Build connection and reduce hesitation

Placement:

Hero section or directly below

Structure (30–60 seconds):

- Who this is for (working professionals)
 - What problems he helps solve
 - How coaching works (brief)
 - Reassurance (supportive, no pressure)
 - Call to action (book consultation)

2. Public Speaking Clip (Authority Builder)

Purpose: Reinforce credibility and real-world experience

Placement:

Mid-page or About section

Examples:

- Short clip of Sonny speaking
 - Image from a speaking event (if video is not available)

3. Coaching Sample Clip (Differentiator)

Purpose: Show how Sonny actually teaches

Placement:

“How It Works” section

Examples:

- Short explanation of a speaking concept

- Demonstration of feedback or coaching style

Priority Guidance

If implementing in phases:

1. Start with the intro video
 2. Add a speaking clip
 3. Add a coaching sample clip

Why This Matters

Because this is a personal service, users are not only evaluating the outcome — they are evaluating the person.

Adding video helps:

- Build trust faster
 - Reduce uncertainty
 - Increase comfort before reaching out

Summary

Adding video elements is one of the most effective ways to strengthen trust and reduce hesitation for a coaching-based service. Even simple, low-production clips can significantly improve how users perceive credibility and connection.

Section: Layout & Visual Structure (Homepage)

Barrier

The current page relies heavily on repeated text blocks and similar formatting throughout. While the content itself is strong, the visual presentation does not create enough variation to guide attention or maintain engagement.

As a result:

- Sections can feel visually repetitive
 - Important information is harder to prioritize
 - Users are more likely to skim or disengage
 - The page does not fully support scannability, especially on mobile

Trigger

Users do not read pages linearly — they scan.

To stay engaged and move forward, they need:

- Clear visual hierarchy
 - Variation between sections
 - Easily digestible content blocks
 - Layouts that help them quickly understand key points

Fix

Introduce layout variation across sections to improve readability, engagement, and information flow.

This does not require complex design — simple structural changes can have a significant impact.

Recommended Layout Patterns

1. Icon + Grid Layout (for Key Sections)

Best for:

- “How Coaching Helps”
- “What Makes This Different”
- “You’re Ready To”

Structure

- 2–3 column grid (responsive to 1 column on mobile)
- Each item includes:
 - Simple icon
 - Short headline
 - 1–2 lines of supporting text

Example Structure

[Icon]

Clear, structured communication

Organize your thoughts and speak with clarity

Why This Works

- Breaks up long text sections
 - Improves scannability
 - Makes benefits easier to process quickly

2. Highlight Box / Callout Section

Best for:

- Emotional positioning
- Transition statements
- Key reassurance messaging

Structure

- Full-width or centered box
- Slight background contrast
- Short paragraph or statement

Example

“If speaking doesn’t come naturally to you, you’re not alone. This coaching is designed to help you improve with structure, practice, and real-world application.”

Why This Works

- Creates emphasis
 - Slows the user down at key moments
 - Adds visual contrast

3. Step-Based Layout (Process Section)

Best for:

- “How It Works”

Structure

- Horizontal (desktop) or stacked (mobile)
 - Numbered steps (1–2–3)
 - Short descriptions

Why This Works

- Makes the process feel simple and approachable
 - Reduces uncertainty
 - Encourages action

4. Testimonial Cards

Best for:

- Social proof

Structure

- Card-style layout
 - Quote + name + location
 - Optional image or visual element

Why This Works

- Makes testimonials more noticeable
 - Improves readability
 - Adds credibility through presentation

5. Alternating Sections (Visual Rhythm)

Best for:

- Breaking up longer pages

Structure

Alternate between:

- Text left / image or visual right
- Text centered
- Grid sections

Why This Works

- Prevents visual fatigue
 - Keeps users engaged as they scroll
 - Creates a more dynamic experience

Important Implementation Notes

- Avoid using the same layout repeatedly across sections
 - Keep text concise — layouts work best when content is tight
 - Prioritize mobile responsiveness (most users will view on mobile)
 - Icons should be simple and consistent in style
 - Visual elements should support the message, not distract from it

Summary

Introducing layout variation will improve how users engage with and process the page. By combining structured content with clear visual hierarchy, the page becomes easier to scan, more engaging, and more effective at guiding users toward taking action.

Contact Page Optimization

Overview

The contact page should function as the final step in the conversion process. Its role is not to explain the service from scratch, but to reinforce the user's decision and make it easy to take action.

At present, the contact page includes helpful information, but it also carries elements of a full landing page. This can create unnecessary friction by introducing additional reading and decision points at the moment users are ready to reach out.

The goal is to simplify the experience and focus on clarity, reassurance, and ease of action.

Barrier

The current contact page includes multiple sections (benefits, FAQs, explanations) that repeat information found elsewhere on the site.

As a result:

- Users are required to process more information than necessary
 - The path to completing the form is less direct
 - The page introduces friction at a critical conversion moment
 - The experience feels more like a second landing page rather than a final step

Trigger

At this stage, users are typically ready to act, but may still have small hesitations.

They need:

- A clear next step
 - Reassurance about what will happen after submitting the form
 - A simple, low-effort way to reach out
 - Confidence that the interaction will be comfortable and low pressure

Fix

Simplify the contact page to focus on conversion, while reinforcing trust and reducing hesitation.

Recommended Structure

1. Headline (Clear Action)

Schedule your free consultation

2. Reassurance (Critical)

Include a short, supportive statement that removes pressure and clarifies expectations.

Example:

We'll talk through your goals, answer your questions, and see if coaching is the right fit. No pressure.

3. Form (Simple and Focused)

Keep fields minimal:

- Name
- Preferred contact (email or phone)
- Message (optional or guided prompt)

Optional prompt:

"What would you like to improve?"

4. What Happens Next (High Impact)

This is one of the most important additions.

Example:

After you reach out, you'll receive a response within a few hours to schedule your free consultation. From there, we'll discuss your goals and outline next steps.

5. Light Trust Element (Optional)

Include one of the following:

- A short testimonial
- A brief credibility line (e.g., 12+ years experience)

Keep this minimal — it should support, not distract.

Layout Recommendations

- Keep the page visually simple and uncluttered
 - Center the form or use a clean two-column layout
 - Ensure strong spacing between sections
 - Optimize for mobile (large fields, easy tapping)

Key Insight

The contact page should reinforce the decision to reach out, not re-sell the service.

Summary

By simplifying the contact page and focusing on clarity, reassurance, and ease of action, you reduce friction at the most important point in the conversion process.

This allows users who are ready to move forward to do so quickly and confidently.

Measurement & Success Criteria

How to Measure Success

To evaluate the impact of these changes, focus on the following key metrics:

- Inquiry Rate
(Form submissions relative to total visitors)
 - Cost Per Lead
(Especially important for paid traffic)
 - Lead Quality
(Percentage of inquiries that convert into paying clients)

Expected Impact

With improved clarity, trust, and structure, the site should convert a higher percentage of existing traffic into qualified inquiries.

Important Note

Results will depend on both traffic volume and implementation quality. Sites with lower traffic may take longer to show clear patterns, but improvements should become more noticeable over time.

Common Pitfalls to Avoid

As you implement these recommendations, it's important to avoid a few common issues that can reduce effectiveness:

- Overloading the homepage with too much text
 - Trying to communicate everything at once instead of guiding users step-by-step
 - Placing key trust elements too far down the page
 - Repeating the same layout across all sections
 - Making the contact page more complex than necessary

Implementation Guidance

To get the most impact from these updates:

- Prioritize structure before refining copy
 - Start with high-impact sections (hero, conversion flow, and calls-to-action)
 - Keep layouts simple and consistent
 - Focus on clarity and usability over design complexity

Before vs. After Experience

Current Experience

- Informational
- Flat structure
- Requires interpretation

Optimized Experience

- Guided
 - Structured decision flow
 - Clear path to action

Final Thoughts

The goal of this audit is not to add complexity, but to improve how your existing traffic converts.

By focusing on clarity, structure, and trust, these changes create a stronger path from visitor to inquiry without requiring additional pages or significant expansion.

Design Approach & Template Recommendation

Overview

The recommended updates focus primarily on structure, messaging, and conversion flow. These improvements do not require a fully custom design build.

In many cases, the most efficient path is to implement these changes using a high-quality pre-built template or theme that includes a variety of flexible content sections.

This allows for faster execution while still supporting a polished, professional user experience.

Barrier

Without a structured design system or flexible layout options:

- Implementing changes may feel unclear or inconsistent
 - Sections may be repeated using the same format
 - The page may lack visual hierarchy and variation
 - Additional time and cost may be required for custom design

Trigger

To implement this effectively, the site needs:

- Flexible section layouts (grids, callouts, cards, etc.)
 - Consistent spacing and visual hierarchy
 - The ability to easily mix content formats
 - A clean, modern foundation that supports conversion

Fix

Use a well-designed template or theme that includes a variety of pre-built content sections, then adapt those sections to match the recommended structure in this report.

What to Look For in a Template

When selecting a template or theme, prioritize:

1. Flexible Section Library

- Grid layouts (2–3 columns)
- Icon + text blocks
- Callout / highlight sections
- Step-based layouts
- Testimonial sections

2. Strong Visual Hierarchy

- Clear heading sizes
 - Good spacing between sections
 - Clean typography

3. Mobile Optimization

- Responsive layouts
 - Easy-to-tap buttons
 - Readable text without crowding

4. Ease of Editing

- Drag-and-drop or modular sections
 - Ability to rearrange sections easily
 - No need for heavy custom development

Recommended Approach

1. Select a clean, modern template with strong section variety
 2. Map each section of the homepage blueprint to an existing layout
 3. Customize content, not structure
 4. Adjust spacing and hierarchy as needed

Example Section Mapping

- Hero → Standard hero section with headline + CTA
- “Is This You?” → Simple bullet or grid section

- “How Coaching Helps” → Icon + grid layout
 - “How It Works” → Step-based layout
 - Testimonials → Card or slider format
 - FAQ → Accordion module

Important Note

The goal is not to create a highly customized design, but to:

- Implement a clear, structured experience
 - Maintain visual consistency
 - Prioritize clarity and usability over complexity

Summary

A high-quality template with flexible section layouts can support all recommended changes in this report while keeping implementation efficient and cost-effective.

This approach ensures that improvements to structure and messaging are reflected in a clean, professional design without requiring a full custom build.
